

Source A states that students should not make the mistake of becoming radical extremists. This can be seen from how the word “error” is highlighted in the word “terrorist”, hence showing that it is a flawed decision to become a terrorist. Source A also tells me we should correct the mindsets of students who support these radical extremists or want to be like them. This can be seen from how one man in the cartoon is pointing out the “error” word in “terrorist”, to show him that people should not become terrorists.

This source is from the Ministry of Education of Singapore. Hence, it was published with the intention of proving to students why terrorism is wrong and convincing them not to support terrorist-related activities in any way in the future.
